Getting Used to it

Today was pretty good. I was able to create the database for my Django app. It's an Amiibo app. A user would be able to store and search Amiibos. It took me a long time to build it and connect all of the views to the templates, but I'm getting used to it.